Globalists use geoengineering “weather weapons” to destroy cities so they can rebuild with a police state infrastructure, warns analyst

On 25 October, Category 5 storm Hurricane Otis made landfall in the Mexican state of Guerrero with a death toll of 46 and 58 people missing as of press time. It left a nightmarish scenario at the popular tourist destination Acapulco.

Media ecologist James Martinez – one of the major proponents of Low-Energy Nuclear Reactions (LENR), or cold fusion technology, which is considered a stable provider of nuclear fusion and a possible future energy source for humankind – was a witness to the devastating calamity. In a recent interview with Mike Adams, founder of the free-speech video platform Brighteon.com, Martinez talked about the horrific experience and the possibility that geoengineering of "weather weapons" was performed in the recent catastrophe.

According to him, he was invited to go to Mexico by presidential candidate Dr. Claudia Sheinbaum to see the next generation of energy power come to life in the country in the form of LENR. He was having a great time in the tourist spot but he immediately noticed that the architectural structures in the place should be changed, even before they were aware that a superstorm would come. He was out with some influential people when they began to realize that indeed a major typhoon was about to happen. He assumed that the public had been pre-informed.

He narrated that they decided to go back to the estate and just have some drinks. "And then as we were sitting in the opening area, which overlooks the bay, the wind factor went up tremendously at about 9:30 to 10 p.m. We didn't think it would go to a category five. But right about midnight, my colleagues got phone calls saying get out of there. And there was no place for us to go to get out of there." As they were just guests of the house, they took shelter inside the residence on the very opposite end of it, which was a huge structure and a very famous architectural landmark. "And there's a massive old tree in front of this estate, which protected us," he said. As they awoke, the tree no longer existed, the rooms were flooded, and what they saw was complete, utter and total devastation. "So that took place but it was played down," he said.

"It looks like a bomb went off," Adams quipped and Martinez quickly agreed. "This is where it gets interesting to me because I was very suspicious of the reason why the port authorities or the government of Acapulco did not warn the public about what happened," he said. As the Cold Fusion advocate inspected, there was no sound outside, no airplanes, and no immediate rescue operations. "Acapulco was officially destroyed. All the boats in the bay, including the one that I was on the previous day, had sunk. And it was very quiet as there was no power at all," he observed, adding that he was expecting at least police or military choppers to assist people and tell them what their instructions were going to be.

"I suspected it was a weather weapon used against Acapulco for the construction of a 15-minute city," he said. Adams agreed pointing out that Acapulco was a hub for free speech and freedom of political affiliation. This makes the once-picturesque destination a target for the urban planning concept that the government wants to implement for their total control and tyranny.

Martinez also disclosed how houses, cars, telephone poles, etc., looked like a demilitarized zone after a war. According to him, in any car that was outside, the windows were blown out. "And most people have driven fast cars, the windows are a dominant problem, there's aerodynamics and all these other things. It was truly unusual to see that the glass in the cars looked like it exploded from some type of unusual electronic weapon of sorts," he revealed.

Simultaneous depopulation operations worldwide

At some point in the show, Adams said that globalists are now carrying out any number of crimes against humanity to keep the human race suppressed as they want to keep everybody down. He mentioned the forgotten catastrophe of the Lahaina, Hawaii fires back in August, which melted pipes, polluting the water inside with toxic chemicals.

Officials are now testing for contamination property by property. Early testing has already exposed the presence of the carcinogen benzene and other chemicals but officials are only starting to understand the scope of the problem. They haven't widely sampled the core of the burn zone. (Related: Was the Maui wildfire a pretext to reclaim Lahaina and turn it into a smart city?)

"Many people believe direct energy weapons were involved. It was very clear that the government stood down, turned off the water, and allowed fires to take over and obliterate a significant portion of the town," the Health Ranger said, emphasizing that thousands of children were missing. "And we haven't heard a thing about those missing children ever since October 7 when Hamas attacked Israel." For him, globalists are running a Gaza-type experiment for all of humanity. "I've said even like the way Israel engineered Gaza to be an open-air concentration camp, with fully surveilled border walls, nothing goes in or out without their permission. They have restrictions on calories, even coming in restrictions on technology. That's the model for all of us," he lamented.

Ok Mike I am not saying they do not do this but why are they not using it for their own good also. For example the Panama canal. The US relies on this and it has a big water problem this year. So one would think the States would do the weather change to make it

The modification of the weather has been in the works for decades. The US government admitted it several years ago. How much control they (or any other government) have over the weather is unclear. It's probably far more than they'd ever admit to. Further
